Introduction

*If I'd known I was going to live this long,
I would have taken better care of myself.*

- Eubie Blake, composer

The legislature devoted the last 15 months and four sessions – two regular and two special – to taking care of New Mexico's fiscal health.

Those who thought the 2009 legislative session was challenging quickly realized it was just the beginning. Legislators were called into a special session in October 2009 to close widening budget gaps that, according to legislative estimates, totaled $214 million for fiscal year 2009 and $650 million for fiscal year 2010. The governor and key legislators ruled out tax increases, so those gaps were largely closed by cutting spending and shifting money from various state funds to the general fund.

The worst economic crisis since the great depression continued unabated and, with it, the state's fiscal woes; but the legislature adjourned the 2010 regular session without approving a general appropriation act for the next year, the first time that has happened since 1984. A second special session began less than two weeks later, rekindling the debate between cutting spending and raising taxes, and it resulted in a compromise that included a fiscal year 2011 spending plan of $5.6 billion – which is less than fiscal year 2008 levels – and the biggest tax increase since the mid-1980s. The tax legislation included increases in the gross receipts tax and the cigarette tax and a partial reinstatement of the gross receipts tax on food, though that was later vetoed by the governor in what he said would be his final legislative act.

The budget approved by legislators also gave the governor unusually broad and unilateral authority to cut spending further if needed.

As the fiscal crisis dominated legislative deliberations, other issues were addressed, but without the drama that typically surrounds them. The legislature overhauled the composition and authority of the state investment council in the wake of influence-peddling allegations, prohibited future government retirees from "double dipping" by drawing both a paycheck and a pension check and allowed New Mexicans who are licensed to carry concealed weapons to do so in restaurants that serve beer and wine. At the same time, the legislature rejected proposals to ban drivers from using cell phones and to allow same-sex couples to enter into domestic partnerships, and the senate surprised many observers when it rejected a nominee to the environmental improvement board – the first time the senate has rejected a gubernatorial nominee since 1997.

The Highlights is an annual publication of the legislative council service that summarizes much, but not all, of the legislative action during each session. The omission of certain legislation or issues should not be interpreted as an indication that those are not important; each is important to someone. Many issues in the Highlights defy single-topic categorization, so every effort has been made to organize and cross-reference the contents. A complete listing of bills that passed is included in the concordances located in Appendix E.

FORTY-NINTH LEGISLATURE
SECOND SESSION, 2010

AGING

Concerns over the potential for exploitation or abuse of elders in a variety of settings are reflected in three pieces of legislation that passed this year.

The Resident Abuse and Neglect Act provides deterrents and remedies for abuse, neglect or exploitation of care facility residents as well as an effective system for reporting instances of abuse, neglect or exploitation. House Bill 217 (Chapter 93) extends the reach of the act by amending the definition of care facilities to include private residences where personal care, sheltered care or nursing care is provided.

Senate Bill 70 (Chapter 88) amends the Continuing Care Act to mandate greater transparency and impose measures on facility owners of continuing care communities that ensure fiscal responsibility and viability. The bill sets requirements for actuarial analyses and financial management according to the type of contracts offered and requires that certain financial disclosures be made to residents.

Senate Bill 55 (Chapter 33) combines the former Missing Persons Information Act and the Missing Child Reporting Act into a comprehensive Missing Persons Information and Reporting Act. The new act requires that certain detailed information be included in a report, to the extent the information is available; imposes time limits for law enforcement agencies to respond to reports and take action; and defines persons with Alzheimer's disease as "endangered persons". Senate Bill 55 also amends the Law Enforcement Training Act to require a minimum amount of training on missing person and AMBER alert laws for law enforcement officers.

APPROPRIATIONS AND FINANCE

January came all too quickly after the October solvency session, in which the legislature had to provide sufficient funding to avoid closing fiscal year 2009 in deficit and grapple with further cuts to the fiscal year 2010 budget. Legislators faced the 2010 legislative session with trepidation as the economy continued its sullen drumbeat of grim news.

Economic Conditions

New Mexico is in the midst of an economic downturn more severe than any since the great depression. Total non-farm employment has declined more steeply and stayed down longer than at any time in the last 65 years, falling from 848,800 jobs in September 2008 to 806,200 in October 2009, a decline of 42,600 jobs, or 5%, in 13 months. Although employment showed some signs of "bottoming out" late in 2009, the state lost another 4,500 jobs through March 2010.

As employment growth leveled off in early 2008, the unemployment rate among New Mexicans began a steep and steady rise. The March 2010 unemployment rate stood at 8.8%, up from

NEW MEXICO NON-FARM EMPLOYMENT AND NEW MEXICO UNEMPLOYMENT RATE

3.7% in January 2008.

The severity of the national recession's economic impact on New Mexico has been compounded by a steep decline in New Mexico's oil and gas industry. In past recessions, the strength of this industry cushioned the impact of national downturns on New Mexico.

The economic downturn has had an extremely negative effect on state revenues. In fiscal year 2008, the state's recurring operating revenues were $6.016 billion. In fiscal year 2009, recurring operating revenues fell to $5.32 billion. In fiscal year 2010, revenues are expected to be about $4.8 billion. In just two years, state operating revenues have fallen by $1.2 billion, or 20%. This revenue decline has caused serious budgeting problems for the legislature because such unprecedented revenue declines were not fully anticipated with the earlier budget estimates.

The problems began in January 2008, when the legislature passed a $6.01 billion general appropriation act for fiscal year 2009, during which it expected to collect just over $6.05 billion in recurring operating revenues. Halfway through fiscal year 2009, the estimate of recurring revenue collections was reduced to $5.7 billion – $310 million short of the recurring revenue needed to meet appropriations.

In the January 2009 session, the legislature passed a "solvency package" to deal with the estimated $310 million shortfall with less than six months left in the budget period. The legislature then proceeded to pass a balanced budget for fiscal year 2010, estimating that the state would collect approximately $5.45 billion in recurring operating revenues during fiscal year 2010.

By October 2009, just four months into fiscal year 2010, it was clear that both the estimate of recurring operating revenues used to craft the 2009 solvency package and the estimate of recurring operating revenues for fiscal year 2010 would come in substantially lower. Actual recurring revenue collections for fiscal year 2009 were $5.32 billion – not the $5.73 billion estimated – adding another $410 million to the recurring revenue shortfall for fiscal year 2009 beyond that which had been covered by the passage of the 2009 solvency package. This additional revenue shortfall would have to be covered by drawing down general fund reserves.

The October 2009 revenue estimate revised the estimate of fiscal year 2010 recurring general fund revenue down from $5.49 billion to $4.83 billion, leaving a $660 million shortfall in recurring general fund revenue for fiscal year 2010. This meant that the legislature had to deal with both a $410 million recurring revenue shortfall for fiscal year 2009 and a $660 million recurring revenue shortfall for fiscal year 2010 before it could move on to pass a budget for fiscal year 2011. The legislature opted to deal with the fiscal years 2009 and 2010 shortfalls in the first special session of the forty-ninth legislature, held in October 2009.

October 2009 Special Session Solvency Measures for Fiscal Years 2009 and 2010

The solvency measures for fiscal years 2009 and 2010 included authorization for transfers from the general fund operating reserves and tax stabilization reserves. The legislature authorized the transfer of balances in 48 special funds to the general fund, voided the general fund financing of 243 capital projects and cut the fiscal year 2010 general fund operating budgets for state government and for public school support.

▶ Transferring Cash Balances

House Appropriations and Finance Committee Substitute for House Bill 6 (Chapter 3, 1st S.S.) authorizes the transfer of balances in the operating reserve and tax stabilization reserve to cover budget shortfalls in fiscal years 2009 and 2010. Section 1 of the bill authorizes the transfer of $225 million from the operating reserve, and Section 2 authorizes the governor to transfer up to $115 million from the tax stabilization reserve.

Another transfer bill, House Bill 3 (Chapter 2, 1st S.S., p.v.), provides for the transfer of balances from a long list of other state funds. Incorporating vetoes by the governor, the law transfers $107.8 million in balances in special funds to the general fund for expenditure in fiscal year 2010 and voids $1.2 million in fiscal year 2009 appropriations, boosting the opening general fund balance for fiscal year 2010 and making that money available for expenditure in that fiscal year. The governor vetoed $6.5 million in additional fund transfers passed by the legislature as part of Chapter 2. Of note is that the governor vetoed transfers out of the public and private pre-kindergarten funds and let stand the transfer of $68 million from the college affordability endowment fund, which was, by far, the largest transfer. See Table 5 in Appendix B for a list of fund transfers and amounts.

Senate Bill 29 (Chapter 7, 1st S.S., p.v.) voids 243 general fund capital projects authorized in prior years for a total, after gubernatorial vetoes, of $136.1 million, thus making these general fund revenue balances available for expenditure in fiscal year 2010. As passed by the legislature, the bill authorizes the issuance of severance tax bonds as an alternative funding source for all the projects. The governor's vetoes to the bill removed the alternative funding for 47 projects totaling $11.6 million, leaving them unfunded. A list of the projects included in Senate Bill 29 appears in Table 15 in Appendix C.

▶ Reducing Fiscal Year 2010 General Fund Operating Budgets

House Bill 16 (Chapter 4, 1st S.S.) and House Appropriations and Finance Committee

Substitute for House Bills 17 and 33 (Chapter 5, 1st S.S., p.v.) (HB 17) reduce the fiscal year 2010 operating budget appropriations passed in January 2009 for all branches of government, higher education and public schools. Chapter 4 reduces the fiscal year 2010 operating budget appropriations for all legislative agencies by $839,400. Chapter 5 was the primary solvency measure that reduced fiscal year 2010 general fund appropriations by reducing appropriations to the general fund in Section 4 of the General Appropriation Act of 2009.

The governor's veto pen was sharp. He eliminated $114 million of the $248.4 million in general fund appropriation cuts included in HB 17 as passed, thus restoring the appropriations; replaced the legislature's 7.6% cut to agencies under the control of the governor with an executive order aimed at reducing agency spending by $79 million; and directed all executive state agencies to implement a five-day furlough, for an estimated savings of $10 million. The vetoed language also included "swaps" of federal funds for general funds for the developmental disabilities support program, medicaid, public school support and higher education, though he left intact an additional reduction of $45.5 million to the state equalization guarantee. The governor also vetoed language that required the governor to reduce personal services and employee benefits for 102 exempt positions. The law appropriates $4 million from the tobacco settlement program fund for medicaid; $3 million from the general fund for public school emergency supplemental funding; $2 million from federal American Reinvestment and Recovery Act of 2009 (ARRA) unemployment insurance modernization funding for operating expenses at the workforce solutions department; and $29 million from the public school capital outlay fund to the public school insurance authority (Senate Bill 24 of the first special session, discussed under the Public School Capital Outlay subheading of the Education section, includes identical language allowing for the use of public school capital outlay fund dollars to pay for school district insurance). The law authorizes the department of finance and administration to reduce appropriations from other state funds, internal service/interagency transfers and federal funds to match general fund reductions. The law directs the legislative council service, legislative finance committee and department of finance and administration to review all unexpended general fund appropriations for capital outlay projects and identify at least $150 million in voidable projects.

Chapters 4 and 5 had a total positive impact of $93.7 million on the fiscal year 2010 budget and left the state general fund with a projected ending balance of $60 million, or just 1.1% of fiscal year 2010 appropriations. Adding in the impact of the executive order that required furloughs and made other budgetary cuts, the projected reserves increased to 2.6%, which still left the state in a very weak financial position as the legislature began the 2010 session. Therefore, the body had to take additional measures to shore up fiscal year 2010 before it could even consider the challenges of the fiscal year 2011 budget.

January 2010 Regular Session Solvency Measures for 2010 and Revenue Measures for 2011

With a further reduction in the December 2009 estimate of general fund revenue available in fiscal year 2010, general fund reserves were projected to fall below 2% by the end of the fiscal year. In order to push fiscal year 2010 reserves close to the 5% mark, the legislature passed another bill voiding capital projects financed from the general fund. Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 182, which is discussed below under the Capital Outlay subheading of this section, voids general fund capital projects totaling $124.1 million, after the governor's vetoes, and returns this revenue to the general fund. In addition, the bill authorizes the issuance of $17.7 million in short-term severance tax bonds with the proceeds to be deposited in the general fund to restore allotments made from the general fund for capital projects enacted in prior sessions.

Although the general appropriations bill for fiscal year 2011 did not pass during the regular session, a number of bills were passed that affect the general fund in fiscal years 2010 and 2011. House Bill 1 (Chapter 1, p.v.) appropriates $4.9 million from the general fund to various legislative agencies for expenditure in fiscal year 2010 to cover the cost of the legislative session and another $15 million in fiscal year 2011 to cover the interim expenses of these agencies. House Bill 8 (Chapter 79) contains the annual appropriation for in-plant training; this year, the law makes a nonrecurring general fund appropriation of $5 million from the general fund for expenditure in fiscal year 2010.

While some of the following bills are discussed more fully elsewhere in the Highlights, they merit mention here in the discussion of economics and solvency because they netted $53.5 million for the general fund for fiscal year 2011.

- ▶ House Bill 79 (Chapter 49) provides that for fiscal year 2011, 100% of the deposits into the tobacco settlement permanent fund shall be distributed to the tobacco settlement program fund. Normally, only 50% of deposits are distributed. The estimated payment of $22.3 million was appropriated in the General Appropriation Act of 2010, which was enacted in the March special session.

- ▶ House Bill 114 (Chapter 52) is another measure that increases money available for fiscal year 2011 expenditures. A previous change to the fire protection fund distribution provided that each year an increasing percentage of the balance left in that fund was to be distributed to the fire protection grant fund. The effect of the law prior to this session was that each year a lesser percentage of the balance would go to the general fund until there would be no distribution to the general fund. The bill amends existing law to provide that, for fiscal year 2011, the percentage distributed to the grant fund will not increase but will remain at its fiscal year 2010 level, allowing more money to flow into the general fund. This change is expected to provide $2.2 million in recurring revenue for 2011.

- ▶ House Bill 120, discussed fully in the Taxation section, changes tax withholding requirements for pass-through entities to net $15.6 million to the general fund in fiscal year 2011.

- ▶ House Bill 203, also discussed in the Taxation section, authorizes certain counties to impose a business retention gross receipts tax, which is estimated to cost the state general fund approximately $400,000 in fiscal year 2011.

- ▶ House Bill 208, discussed in the Energy, Environment and Natural Resources section, increases the oil and gas conservation tax and distributes the proceeds of the increase to the oil and gas reclamation fund, which is estimated to cost the general fund $200,000 in fiscal year 2011.

- ▶ House Energy and Natural Resources Committee Substitute for House Bills 261 and 277, discussed in the Taxation section, provides a gross receipts tax deduction on the sale of solar generation equipment to governmental entities at an estimated cost of $4.3 million to the general fund in fiscal year 2011.

- ▶ House Bill 266 (Chapter 61) extends the time frame for the operation of the New Mexico recovery and reinvestment fund for fiscal years 2010 and 2011. The fund was created in 2009 in response to a federal requirement that state savings from the temporary increase in the federal medical assistance percentage be used solely for medicaid expenses and not be commingled with other state funds.

- ▶ Even efforts to shore up retirement funds were not spared from efforts to ensure budget solvency. Senate Bill 91 (Chapter 67) addresses the employer contribution rate under the Educational Retirement Act, which was scheduled to increase each year from fiscal year 2006 through fiscal year 2011. This law freezes the fiscal year 2011 contribution rate at the same rate used in fiscal year 2010 and extends the annual increase through fiscal year 2012. By not allowing the employer contribution rate to increase, the state will save $18.3 million in fiscal year 2011.

- ▶ Senate Bill 144, discussed in the Taxation section, expands the affordable housing tax credit, costing the general fund an estimated $50,000 in fiscal year 2011.

The combined impact on the fiscal year 2010 budget of measures passed during the October special session and the January regular session yielded approximately a $200 million fiscal year 2010 ending cash balance and set the stage for the passage during the March special session of the general appropriation act and the required revenue measures to operate state government during fiscal year 2011 and replenish cash reserves.

March 2010 Special Session: General Appropriation Act, Tax Increases and Revenue Enhancements

The second special session of the forty-ninth legislature, held in March 2010, saw the passage of the General Appropriation Act of 2010 and a package of tax increases and revenue enhancements to finance general fund spending in fiscal year 2011 and beyond. See the Taxation section for a discussion of the tax bills that passed during this session.

- ▶ General Appropriation Act

- ▶ Although the $5.343 billion in general fund recurring revenue appropriated in House Bill 2 (Chapter 6, 2nd S.S., p.v.) (HB 2) for fiscal year 2011 is an increase of 1.7% of the final general appropriation act for fiscal year 2010, it is a $227 million, or 4.1%, decrease from the initial fiscal year 2010 general appropriation act total of $5.570 billion passed by the legislature in the January 2009 regular session.

In addition to these general fund appropriations, HB 2 includes appropriations of federal ARRA funds and state funds from the tobacco settlement fund to supplant general fund appropriations to a number of state agencies and public schools. The $203 million in ARRA funds appropriated for fiscal year 2011 are down by half from the $406 million in ARRA funds appropriated for fiscal year 2010 to temporarily avoid further cuts to state government. These federal funds, although supplanting recurring general fund appropriations for recurring needs, are temporary, and these funds will have to be replaced with recurring state revenues, or state agency budgets will have to be cut further in 2012.

In addition, the legislature appropriated $22.8 million in fiscal year 2010 and $22.3 million in fiscal year 2011 from the state's tobacco settlement fund to supplant general fund appropriations.

Adding these supplanting amounts of federal and other state fund appropriations to the remaining general fund appropriations, including special appropriations bills, yields total recurring appropriations for fiscal year 2011 of $5.579 billion – compared to $5.704 billion in total funding from these sources in fiscal year 2010 – for a decline of $125 million, or 2.1%. The bottom line: in fiscal year 2011, while total appropriations, both general fund and other supplanting funds, decreased from fiscal year 2010 by $125 million, general fund appropriations alone increased by $84 million, thus partially offsetting by $203 million, or 50%, the use of federal funds to supplant fiscal year 2010 general funds. The increase in general fund appropriations was made possible with the passage of a number of revenue enhancements, as described below. From a budgetary point of view, these were very positive moves. Total appropriations were trimmed, and a recurring tax revenue stream replaced the federal revenues, which may be cut off by congress at any time.

For public schools, HB 2 appropriates $2.455 billion in general fund and ARRA funds in fiscal year 2011, a 1.3% reduction of $31 million from the comparable appropriation for fiscal year 2010 after the October solvency adjustments. This reduction masks a $186 million reduction in federal funds used to supplant general funds and a $155 million increase in the general fund appropriation for public schools.

For the health and human services sector of the state budget, HB 2 appropriates $1.447 billion in general fund plus federal and state supplanting funds for fiscal year 2011, which is $12 million, or 0.8%, below the comparable adjusted fiscal year 2010 appropriation. This masks a reduction in the budgets of all agencies in this sector except for medicaid, which grew by $6.5 million from the adjusted fiscal year 2010 operating budget. During fiscal year 2010, $180.5 million in ARRA funds were used to supplant general funds for medicaid. In fiscal year 2011, $168.2 million will be used. The HB 2 general fund appropriation increases slightly to $1.256 billion in fiscal year 2011 from $1.25 billion in fiscal year 2010.

For higher education, HB 2 appropriates $803.2 million in general fund plus federal supplanting funds in fiscal year 2011, down by $29 million, or 3.5%, from the comparable appropriation for fiscal year 2010 adjusted during the October special session. The $792.3 million fiscal year 2011 general fund appropriation in HB 2 for higher education is down $24 million, or 3.0%, from the fiscal year 2010 general fund appropriations after reductions in the October special session. Federal funding used to supplant general funds fell by $4.6 million, from $15.5 million to $10.9 million. Appropriations for instruction and general funding are reduced across the board. HB 2 assumes a 5% tuition increase for four-year institutions and a 9% increase for two-year schools and out-of-state students.

For general government, HB 2 appropriates $309 million in general funds for fiscal year 2011, down 6% from the fiscal year 2010 budget adjusted during the October special session. This sector, which includes the legislature, general control, commerce and industry and agriculture, energy and natural resources agencies, receives no supplanting federal funds in HB 2.

Section 5 of HB 2 includes special nonrecurring general fund appropriations of $1.5 million to the secretary of state to cover 2010 primary and general election costs and $50,000 to the department of finance and administration to cover transition costs of the new administration in 2011. This section also appropriates $10 million from the appropriation contingency fund's "education lockbox" – $4 million for emergency support to small, rural school districts in financial difficulty and $6 million for emergency support to any school district experiencing budget shortfalls.

Section 10 provides for "sanding" of all general fund appropriations in Section 4 with an across-the-board reduction of .544% in the general fund appropriation to executive, legislative and executive state agencies and educational institutions and in public school support. Exceptions are granted for the general fund appropriation in the other financing uses category of the developmental disabilities support program at the department of health and the general fund appropriations in the other category of the medical assistance program and the other category of the medical behavioral health program at the human services department.

Section 10 further reduces the general fund appropriation to agencies and institutions in Section 4 as follows:

- ▶ $500,000 for agencies affected by reduced telecommunication rates charged by the department of information technology;
- ▶ $1,978,600 for agencies affected by reduced public liability insurance premiums charged by the risk management division of the general services department;
- ▶ $366,800 for agencies affected by reduced assessments by the department of information technology for use of the statewide human resources, accounting and management reporting system, or SHARE;
- ▶ $1,400,000 for agencies affected by legislation that prohibits new retirees from returning to work without suspending their retirement;

- ▶ $3,142,300 for agencies that achieve budget savings by not filling vacant exempt employee positions; and

- ▶ $200,000 for agencies affected by the employee assistance program.

Section 11 provides that agencies affected by Executive Order 2009-044 shall revert to the general fund on June 30, 2010 an amount equal to the sum of: (1) the expenditure savings requirements for the agency set forth in Subsection A of Section 1 of the order; and (2) the amount of personal service and employee benefit savings from the general fund to be realized as a result of the furloughs adopted pursuant to Section 2 of the order.

Section 12, which was vetoed, would have distributed $15 million in federal ARRA funds to school districts and $10 million to state agencies to offset the sanding and other appropriation reductions in Section 10.

Section 14 grants the governor the authority to reduce allotments if sufficient forecasted revenues do not materialize. During fiscal year 2011, the department of finance and administration is directed to consult regularly with legislative finance committee staff to compare revenue collections with revenue estimates associated with passage of a balanced fiscal year 2011 budget. If a consensus revenue forecast projects that revenues and transfers to the general fund, including all transfers authorized pursuant to Section 14 of the General Appropriation Act of 2010, will be insufficient to meet general fund appropriations for fiscal year 2011, the governor, with the approval of the state board of finance and after review and an opportunity to comment by the legislative finance committee, shall reduce general fund allotments to all agencies, funds, programs and other recipients that receive a general fund appropriation in Section 4 of the act, pursuant to the following guidelines:

- ▶ the aggregate amount shall equal the amount of the projected deficit;
- ▶ the reductions shall apply proportionately to all agencies, funds and other recipients and to all programs and categories within agencies that receive a general fund appropriation in Section 4, except that no reductions shall be made in the allotments for medicaid programs or the developmental disabilities support program;

- ▶ if a reduction in an allotment for personal services and employee benefits necessitates a reduction in salaries, agencies may temporarily reduce salaries in the amount of the reduction;

- ▶ if a subsequent consensus revenue forecast released during fiscal year 2011 projects revenues to increase above the previous forecast, the allotments shall be increased to reflect the new forecast, up to the amount of the original appropriation;

- ▶ if a subsequent consensus revenue forecast released during fiscal year 2011 projects revenues to decrease further from previous forecasts, allotments shall be further reduced; and

- ▶ expenditures of the appropriations made to legislative agencies in Laws 2010, Chapter 1, Subsection A of Section 3 and Sections 4, 5, 7 and 8 shall also be reduced.

Section 15 provides that if the revenue and other transfers to the general fund at the end of fiscal year 2010 or 2011 are not sufficient to meet appropriations, the governor, with state board of finance approval, may transfer up to $83 million from the tax stabilization reserve to the appropriation account of the general fund. If, after the total transfer from the tax stabilization fund, the governor determines that revenue and transfers to the general fund at the end of fiscal year 2010 or 2011 are still not sufficient to meet appropriations, the governor, with state board of finance approval, may transfer up to $49 million from the special account in the appropriation contingency fund commonly referred to as the "education lockbox".

▶ Tax Increases

Also in the March special session, the legislature passed three bills aimed at raising the additional funds required to balance the fiscal year 2011 budget. The revenue impact of these bills is discussed briefly below, and full descriptions and details are presented in the Taxation section.

▶ House Taxation and Revenue Committee Substitute for House Bill 3 increases the cigarette tax by $0.75 per pack. While the original bill would have increased the tax temporarily through June 30, 2014 and would have dedicated $11 million to other state funds for education and youth services, the governor's vetoes made the increase permanent, put the entire increase in the general fund and repealed certain distributions to counties and municipalities so that a larger portion of the entire tax goes to the general fund. With the vetoes, the gain to the general fund from this law will be $35.9 million in fiscal year 2011.

▶ Senate Bill 2 establishes a tax amnesty program that will raise an estimated $2.1 million in fiscal year 2011.

▶ Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Bills 10, 12 and 13 increases the state gross receipts tax rate by .125% and repeals certain state income tax deductions. As passed, the bill would have repealed the food exemption for local taxation and would have increased the tax credit known as the "low-income comprehensive tax rebate" to offset the impact of the food tax, and this would have raised approximately $8 million in fiscal year 2010 and $200.2 million in fiscal year 2011. The governor vetoed the food tax and the income tax credit increase, which decreased the revenue raised by an estimated $62.7 million. The bill with the vetoes will raise an estimated $8 million in fiscal year 2010 and $137.5 million in fiscal year 2011.

Capital Outlay

Funding for capital outlay projects took center stage in all three sessions as the legislature dealt with solvency issues, beginning with the first special session in October 2009. Senate Bill 29 (Chapter 7, 1st S.S., p.v.) continues the trend begun in the 2009 regular session to address the state's dwindling general fund. The bill voids nearly 250 general fund appropriations for capital outlay projects from prior years, for a total recovery of approximately $136 million. Rather than let these projects die completely, however, the bill also authorizes the issuance of severance tax bonds to provide funding for those projects. Further, the bill transfers $51.6 million from the public school capital outlay fund to the general fund to address solvency, an amount that represents the unexpended balance of state general fund dollars allocated to school districts for the state share of public school capital outlay projects. Finally, the bill allows for the issuance of severance tax bonds into the public school capital outlay fund to replace the funds transferred for the state share of projects. The governor vetoed nearly 50 projects totaling nearly $12 million from the section of the bill that authorizes severance tax bonds to be issued for these projects, which, in effect, voids those projects entirely.

Also in the 2009 special session, the legislature directed the legislative council service, legislative finance committee and department of finance and administration to review all unexpended capital outlay appropriations and identify $150 million of voidable general fund capital projects. Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 182 (Chapter 105, p.v.) in the regular session was the result of that directive. The intent of the voids was to boost general fund reserves – currently unacceptably low at less than 1% for fiscal year 2010 – to at least 5%. By reverting and sweeping balances, the bill voids more than 2,000 general fund projects totaling approximately $132 million, and it voids more than 500 severance tax bond projects totaling more than $83 million. Of the $132 million, more than $25 million in projects are reauthorized to severance tax bond capacity so that these projects can continue. The bill authorizes the state board of finance to issue short-term severance tax bonds in an amount not to exceed $17.7 million, which amount is to be transferred to the general fund to restore the allotments made from the general fund for capital project general fund appropriations that were enacted in prior sessions of the legislature and had an expenditure period ending on or after June 30, 2010. As passed, the bill contained exception language, later vetoed, that allowed for a 30-day period after the effective date of the act for project documentation to be reviewed by the secretary of finance and administration to determine the validity of each project based on certain criteria, including requirements that there were binding written obligations for the project in place on or before October 30, 2009; that there are committed matching funds for the project; and that the project will be completed by the scheduled reversion date.

The governor's partial veto of Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 182 had the following effects:

- ▶ the exception section was completely vetoed, essentially eliminating any further project review;
- ▶ 34 general fund projects were vetoed, restoring over $6 million in general fund appropriations for those projects; and
- ▶ 40 severance tax bond projects were vetoed, restoring over $36 million in severance tax bond revenues for those projects.

A detailed listing of the projects voided in Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 182 may be found in Table 16 in Appendix C.

Two other successful bills in the regular session addressed funding for capital projects in specific underserved areas. House Bill 162 (Chapter 37) provides a revenue stream for funding tribal projects under the Tribal Infrastructure Act, which was enacted in 2005. The bill allocates 5% of the annual severance tax bonding capacity for the projects, beginning with the capacity estimated for the 2012 legislative session. Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Public Affairs Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 279 (Chapter 10) enacts the Colonias Infrastructure Act. The act is intended as a vehicle to provide funding for infrastructure improvements to New Mexico's colonias, which are defined as rural communities within 150 miles of the Mexican border that have been in existence since 1990 and that lack potable water, adequate sewage systems or decent, safe and sanitary housing. The act creates a board that will set criteria and review applications for funding and also creates a trust fund and a project fund. Staffing for the board and administration of the projects will be done through the New Mexico finance authority. The bill also amends the Severance Tax Bonding Act to allocate 5% of the annual severance tax bonding capacity for the infrastructure projects, beginning with the capacity estimated for the 2012 legislative session.

Within hours of convening the March special session, the legislature resurrected two capital outlay bills that had died on the final day of the regular session and, in doing so, renewed a protracted battle over which projects should benefit from the state's meager available bonding capacity and whether the state should be issuing bonds at all. After committee and floor substitutes and amendments in both chambers during the regular session, the list of proposed severance tax bond and general obligation bond projects devolved from consensus to controversy, and the bills to fund the projects failed in the senate a few hours before the regular session was adjourned. Both measures passed during the subsequent special session in their resurrected forms, but only after prolonged debate and further attempts to amend them. Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 1 (Chapter 3, 2nd S.S.) authorizes the issuance of $174,900,000 in general obligation bonds to be approved by the voters in the 2010 general election, and House Bill 5 (Chapter 4, 2nd S.S., p.v.), after vetoes, authorizes the issuance of $42,150,000 in severance tax bonds, with proceeds from the bonds in both bills appropriated for improvements at state-owned and tribal-owned facilities. In addition, more than two dozen reauthorizations are included in House Bill 5. See Tables 13 and 14 in Appendix C for lists of the projects in each bill.

New Mexico Finance Authority

The New Mexico Finance Authority Act requires legislative approval of projects funded through the public project revolving fund and other funds supported by state revenue. House Bill 38 (Chapter 46) authorizes the New Mexico finance authority to make loans from the public project revolving fund to specified entities for 115 specified categories of public projects throughout the state; Senate Bill 66 (Chapter 63) authorizes the authority, pursuant to the Statewide Economic Development Finance Act, to provide financing assistance from the economic development revolving fund for 38 specified private projects; and House Bill 56 (Chapter 47) authorizes the authority to make loans or grants from the water project fund for 61 projects around the state. Lists of the authorized projects in each of these bills appear in Tables 9, 10 and 11 in Appendix B.

House Bill 108 (Chapter 51) appropriates $2,714,600 from the public project revolving fund to the drinking water state revolving loan fund. This appropriation provides state matching funds for the federal Safe Drinking Water Act of 1974 to carry out the purposes of the Drinking Water State Revolving Loan Fund Act and will generate approximately $13.6 million in federal funding. The funds will capitalize a low-interest loan program to finance water projects for eligible political subdivisions of the state.

Prior to the enactment of Senate Bill 120 (Chapter 16), the New Mexico finance authority could only purchase securities that were accompanied by a certification that no litigation that may have challenged the validity of issuance of that security was pending as of the date of delivery of the security. Senate Bill 120 relaxes that mandate, authorizing the New Mexico finance authority to purchase a security, even if litigation challenging the validity of that security is pending, so long as pending litigation is disclosed prior to the purchase transaction.

Public Finance

In order to meet the future demand for water in the face of a diminishing supply, eastern New Mexico communities have banded together to find a long-term source of water. House Bill 15 (Chapter 39) furthers that goal by creating the eastern New Mexico water utility authority. This new authority will provide for regional governance across county and municipal boundaries for more effective management and will provide an organized structure to work with state, local and federal agencies to complete a water delivery system from the Ute reservoir to local governments. The boundaries of the authority are coextensive with Curry and Roosevelt county boundaries. A seven-member board is created to administer the authority, made up from members appointed by Curry and Roosevelt counties; the cities of Clovis, Portales and Texico; the towns of Melrose and Elida; and the village of Grady. The new eastern New Mexico water utility authority may establish rates for water delivered, issue revenue bonds and undertake regional water planning.

BUSINESS AND CONSUMERS

Even in this short and budget-focused session, lawmakers found time to consider bills to protect New Mexico businesses and consumers, and it is not surprising that the bills that passed were largely in response to problems created by the current state and national economic woes.

The widely publicized bankruptcies of two of the nation's three leading automobile manufacturers led to the passage of duplicate bills: House Bill 93 (Chapter 40) and Senate Bill 58 (Chapter 38). In the automakers' bankruptcy cases, federal bankruptcy law trumped state dealership and franchise laws and allowed the automakers to terminate dealer franchises or restructure their dealership networks. Since General Motors and the Chrysler corporation have come out of bankruptcy, New Mexico car dealers have sought stronger protections of their franchise rights under state law. House Bill 93 and Senate Bill 58 amend New Mexico's motor vehicle dealer franchising law to provide those greater protections by prohibiting an automaker's abuse of site control agreements or exclusive use agreements. The bills also expand the list of items and assets a manufacturer must repurchase from a dealership when its franchise is terminated and clarify what constitutes an anticipatory termination of a franchise.

Tough economic times seem to bring some predators out of the woodwork. The recent increase in residential foreclosures has created a cottage industry of "foreclosure consultants", some of whom have taken advantage of New Mexicans in financial crisis. Prior to enactment of the Mortgage Foreclosure Consultant Fraud Prevention Act in House Judiciary Committee Substitute for House Bill 205 (Chapter 58), mortgage foreclosure consultants had been largely unregulated. The new law requires full disclosure of the nature and extent of foreclosure consulting services to be provided, including any foreclosure reconveyance that may be involved, and the total amount and terms of any compensation to be received by a foreclosure consultant. It also provides a three-day rescission period within which a consumer may rescind a foreclosure consultant's contract without penalty. A violation of the act constitutes an unfair trade practice pursuant to the Unfair Practices Act, thus giving consumers a private right of action, and the attorney general and district attorney are authorized to prosecute violations of the act.

Another bill related to the housing crisis, Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 138 (Chapter 13), fine-tunes the Appraisal Management Company Registration Act. Since the passage of that act, the real estate appraisers board has begun to register appraisal management companies and has determined that certain provisions needed to be clarified. To that end, Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 138 requires appraisal management companies to be bonded; provides that disciplinary hearings of an appraisal management company be heard pursuant to Uniform Licensing Act procedures; prohibits appraisal management companies from requiring appraisers to indemnify the company for anything other than the appraiser's own errors and omissions; and requires that an appraisal management company separately state the fees charged by the company in documents given to the bank making the loan on the property or to the homebuyer.

In 2007, the legislature enacted the Credit Report Security Act, which established a procedure to allow consumers to place a security freeze on their credit reports and created a private right of action against consumer reporting agencies that did not comply with that procedure. House Judiciary Committee Substitute for House Bill 131 (Chapter 54) changes the name of the act to the Fair Credit Reporting and Identity Security Act; establishes a procedure by which a consumer may remove information placed on the consumer's credit report as a result of identity theft; creates a private right of action against a consumer reporting agency that fails to remove the information; and authorizes the attorney general to institute a civil action against a consumer reporting agency for violations of the act.

Private space flight is an exciting new industry that has been touted as having much promise for economic development in southern New Mexico. In order to protect New Mexico's significant investment in the spaceport and in order to remain competitive with other states that have already passed similar measures, the legislature passed Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 9 (Chapter 8), enacting the Space Flight Informed Consent Act. The act requires that space flight entities warn their customers about the risks inherent in space flight and, if such warning is given, provides space flight entities civil immunity from tort liability. The civil immunity does not apply where a space flight entity acts with gross negligence or willful or wanton disregard for the safety of the customer.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

The legislature approved four proposed amendments to the constitution of New Mexico during the session, which brings to five the number of amendments that will appear on the ballot in the fall of 2010. The legislative council service publishes an analysis of, and arguments for and against, proposed constitutional amendments prior to the election in which they appear on the ballot, and the publication will be available in the summer of 2010.

Article 4, Section 28 of the constitution of New Mexico prohibits a member of the legislature from being appointed to any civil office during the term for which the member was elected. House Joint Resolution 3 (C.A. 5) proposes to amend the constitution to allow a member of the legislature to accept appointment to a civil office if the member first resigns from the legislature and if the civil office was not created, and the emoluments of the office not improved or approved, during the member's legislative term of office.

Once an elected county officer serves two consecutive four-year terms, that officer is not eligible to hold any county office for two years. Senate Joint Resolution 5 (C.A. 2) proposes to amend Article 10, Section 2 of the constitution of New Mexico to allow elected county officers to serve up to three consecutive four-year terms, instead of the current limit of two consecutive terms.

Senate Joint Resolution 6 (C.A. 3) proposes several changes to the constitutional provisions delineating who is qualified to vote in New Mexico elections. The amendment removes state residency requirements, state restrictions on minimum voting age and prohibitions on voting by "idiots, insane persons" and felons. The amendment would also expand the type of elections in which qualified electors would be eligible to vote by allowing them to vote in all elections held in New Mexico, rather than just in elections for public officers of the state. Under the proposed new provisions, the legislature would be allowed to enact laws governing residency and registration requirements, as well as laws restricting a felon's right to vote. In addition, persons who have mental disabilities that prevent them from both communicating their vote preference and marking a ballot could also be subject to statutory restrictions.

The property of veterans' organizations chartered by the United States congress that is used primarily for veterans and their families would be exempt from property taxes in accordance with the terms of the constitutional amendment proposed by Senate Joint Resolution 7 (C.A. 4). The proposed exemption would reduce net taxable value of counties and may prompt local governments to look at other revenue sources.

COURTS

Three bills passed this session that relate to the courts. Two of the bills were cost-saving measures relating to funding magistrate courts and delaying the establishment of a new metropolitan court, and one created two judgeships through reorganization at no additional cost to the state.

A new district judgeship in the first judicial district and a new magistrate in Doña Ana county are created in Senate Bill 6 (Chapter 3). These two judgeships are created in response to a critical need in those districts and require no additional cost. The first judicial district will convert a hearing officer position into a new judgeship, and the Doña Ana county magistrate will be funded through the elimination of a magistrate position in Lea county.

Anticipating that the results of the 2010 federal census would require the establishment of a metropolitan court in Doña Ana county and recognizing the high cost of establishing and operating such a court, the legislature increased the threshold population requirement for metropolitan courts in class A counties. House Bill 229 (Chapter 99) increases the threshold population from 200,000 persons to 250,000 persons.

To assist in funding the operations of magistrate courts for the next four years, Senate Bill 226 (Chapter 7) imposes a temporary $4.00 fee on traffic violations until May 31, 2014.

CRIMINAL LAW AND PUBLIC SAFETY

Perhaps the most controversial criminal law bill this session was one that removed the felony sanction for carrying concealed handguns into restaurants that serve beer and wine, thus continuing the trend that began in 2007 of allowing concealed handguns into liquor establishments. Other successful criminal law bills included increasing penalties for crimes relating to Native American arts and crafts and addressing some procedural matters. The two successful bills concerning driving under the influence deal with funding issues, namely, the interlock device fund and the fees for chemical testing. Three bills relating to domestic violence passed and were signed into law: the first narrows the class of domestic violence victims; the second classifies domestic violence victims who go missing as endangered persons; and the third creates a leadership commission. With respect to other public safety measures, two acts were combined to form a comprehensive Missing Persons Information and Reporting Act, and a procedure to pay stipends to volunteer firefighters in underserved areas was established.

Restaurants that serve only beer and wine and derive at least 60% of their annual gross receipts from the sale of food may now be patronized by persons carrying concealed handguns. Senate Bill 40 (Chapter 106) removes the felony sanction for carrying a concealed handgun on the premises of such restaurants if the person carrying the gun is in possession of a valid concealed handgun license for that gun. A restaurant can prohibit the carrying of handguns on its premises, however, by posting a sign to that effect. This bill continues a trend in recent years of allowing concealed handguns onto the premises of licensed liquor establishments. Prior to 2007, it was a fourth degree felony to carry a firearm into any liquor establishment; in 2007, the legislature removed the sanction for carrying concealed handguns into package liquor stores and now, with the passage of this bill, has removed the sanction for carrying such weapons into restaurants that sell beer and wine for consumption on the premises.

Various sections of the Criminal Code relating to property crimes were amended in 2006 to provide for consistent penalties and levels of punishment based on the value of the property stolen, damaged or unlawfully or fraudulently obtained. Senate Bill 107 (Chapter 35) extends those same levels of sanctions to the Indian Arts and Crafts Sales Act, increasing penalties for deceptive or misleading practices relating to Native American arts and crafts.

House Bill 63 (Chapter 26) changes the procedures to require human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) testing of persons convicted of or formally charged with certain sex offenses. Previously, a victim was required to petition the court for an order directing such a test; now, the prosecutor must petition the court at the victim's request.

The rarely used alternative verdict of "guilty but mentally ill" is repealed in Senate Bill 216 (Chapter 97). The consequences of such a verdict are identical to the consequences of a verdict of "guilty", and the choice between the two had caused unnecessary confusion to juries.

Domestic Violence

In order to focus on the most vulnerable victims of domestic violence and effectively use limited resources, Senate Bill 2 (Chapter 85) narrows the definition of a domestic violence victim under the Crimes Against Household Members Act and the Family Violence Protection Act to include only a spouse, child, parent or grandparent or a person who has had a dating or intimate relationship with the abuser. The bill removes broader family relationships that lack the power and control dynamics present in domestic violence cases.

In response to numerous incidents of domestic violence that have resulted in the death of the victim, the legislature passed Senate Bill 167 (Chapter 32) to classify missing domestic violence victims as endangered persons. Under the new law, when a missing person is also a victim of domestic violence or stalking, the person is classified as an endangered person, requiring law enforcement agencies to act quickly and the department of public safety to issue an endangered person advisory and disseminate information to the media. The bill allows a close friend to report a missing person and provides a time limit on the response of local law enforcement agencies.

A 26-member New Mexico domestic violence leadership commission is created in Senate Bill 26 (Chapter 86) to identify, among other things, domestic violence services that are lacking or in need of improvement; develop strategies for addressing issues of domestic violence and raising public awareness; and review laws, regulations and policies related to domestic violence. The commission reports to the governor and to a legislative committee. Commission members will meet at least six times annually and are paid per diem and mileage.

Driving Under the Influence

The interlock device fund, which was created in 2002 to pay a portion of the costs of ignition interlock devices for indigent offenders convicted of driving while intoxicated (DWI), was insolvent at the beginning of this legislative session. House Judiciary Committee Substitute for House Bill 207 (Chapter 29) addresses many of the concerns surrounding the fund by providing standards for eligibility and requiring that only the traffic safety bureau of the department of transportation determine who is eligible for assistance from the fund. Previously, the sentencing court and probation and parole officers could determine eligibility. The bill further ensures that ignition interlock vendors do not charge the fund a higher amount than they would charge an offender and provides that assistance from the fund is only required if money is available in the fund. Finally, the bill requires judges to give a DWI offender credit for the time that the offender used an interlock device prior to conviction.

With the passage of Senate Bill 32 (Chapter 5), the fee DWI offenders pay to help defray the costs of chemical and other tests used to determine whether a driver is under the influence of liquor or drugs is increased from $65.00 to $85.00.

Other Public Safety Measures

The Missing Persons Information Act and the Missing Child Reporting Act are combined in Senate Bill 55 (Chapter 33) to form a comprehensive Missing Persons Information and Reporting

Act. The new act requires that certain detailed information be included in a report, to the extent it is available, and imposes time limits for law enforcement agencies to respond to reports and take action. In addition, the Law Enforcement Training Act is amended to require a minimum amount of training for law enforcement officers on missing person and AMBER alert laws.

New Mexico is dependent on volunteer firefighters to operate fire departments in counties throughout the state, and counties are having an increasingly difficult time recruiting and retaining volunteers. To help alleviate this problem, Senate Bill 100 (Chapter 69) allows fire protection grants to be used to pay stipends to volunteer firefighters in "underserved areas". The fire protection grant council is required to define "underserved area" and ensure that the proposed stipends comply with the federal Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 and United States department of labor requirements for maintaining volunteer status. The council may consider whether a fire district requires a service commitment from its volunteer firefighters in exchange for stipends. The bill also requires a basic level of training before a volunteer may receive a stipend.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

The legislature endeavored not only to encourage economic development, but also to provide new guidelines and greater transparency requirements concerning the methods used to promote economic development.

To boost economic development in the downtown main street area of Las Cruces, House Bill 112 (Chapter 11) and Senate Bill 95 (Chapter 9) authorize the Las Cruces downtown tax increment development district to issue tax-exempt bonds secured by 75% of state gross receipts tax revenue generated within the district. The maximum issuance authorized is $8 million, and the legislature is prohibited from approving or authorizing certain capital outlay projects within the tax increment development district while the bonds are outstanding.

To promote accountability and transparency with tax incentives aimed at spurring economic development, Senate Bill 47 (Chapter 87) establishes qualification guidelines for economic development tax incentives, including tracking of job creation. It also requires the economic development department to publish annually a list of economic development tax incentives used by each taxpayer.

EDUCATION

Even in a limited, 30-day session, education is a topic of great interest to legislators. As in 2009, public school officials and higher education leaders were concerned mainly with maintaining their budgets in the face of the second year of the worst budget crisis in memory. Through the regular session and two special sessions, the legislature grappled with how to close the fiscal year 2009 and fiscal year 2010 budget deficits while trying to do the least possible damage, particularly to public schools. See the Appropriations and Finance section for a description of school funding. While the finance committees worked on the budget, the house and senate education committees were kept busy with a steady stream of educational proposals.

Educational Retirement

House Bill 231 (Chapter 60) is a cleanup amendment to Section 22-11-55 NMSA 1978 to clarify that the amounts of pension and disability benefits are a matter of public record and not confidential.

The Educational Retirement Act provides that for retirees 65 and over, retirement annuities will be adjusted annually using the consumer price index. House Bill 239 (Chapter 81) prevents a retiree's pension from being decreased below a current entitlement in the event there is a decrease in the consumer price index, which apparently has occurred this year. See the Appropriations and Finance section for a discussion of Senate Bill 91, which delays increased contributions to the educational retirement fund.

Higher Education

Senate Bill 85 (Chapter 65) creates the school leadership institute, which is administratively attached to the higher education department. The institute will provide a comprehensive and cohesive framework for preparing, mentoring and providing professional development to school principals, superintendents and other public school leaders.

Senate Bill 152 (Chapter 71) prohibits public or private post-secondary educational institutions from selling, giving or otherwise transferring student lists to a credit card issuer to be used to distribute or market credit cards to undergraduate students. Institutions may not allow the marketing of credit cards from the property or campus of the institution. The law also gives a right of action to a person whose contact information was sold, given or transferred to a credit card issuer. The civil penalty may be in an amount not to exceed $10,000 for each violation plus costs and reasonable attorney fees.

The goal of the legislative lottery scholarship program is to improve the high school graduation rate and provide accessibility to higher education for New Mexico's young people. The state has agreed to use lottery proceeds to pay the cost of an undergraduate degree for any New Mexico high school graduate who attends a New Mexico public post-secondary educational institution immediately upon high school graduation. The law was written to allow a high school graduate who immediately enters military service upon graduation to return and receive the scholarship if the veteran entered a public post-secondary educational institution within 120 days of honorable or medical discharge. Senate Bill 134 (Chapter 109) extends the time allowed to one year after discharge.

Public School Capital Outlay

With the availability of operational funding at an all-time low, legislators grappled during the first special session in October with finding creative ways to fund operational expenditures outside of general fund sources. Two bills, House Appropriations and Finance Committee Substitute for House Bills 17 and 33 (Chapter 5, 1st S.S., p.v.) and Senate Bill 24 (Chapter 6, 1st S.S.), proposed to use funds from the public school capital outlay fund to pay or reimburse school districts and charter schools for their payments to the public school insurance authority for property insurance. After the special session ended, legislative staff received opinions from legal counsel stating that use of capital money for any operational expenditures would jeopardize New Mexico's status as a federally recognized equity state, and, thus, the use of supplemental severance tax bond proceeds for operational expenditures would be inappropriate. The legislature, then, had to grapple with this issue during the regular session and ultimately had to repeal the appropriation.

Public school capital outlay bills that passed during the regular 2010 session included an "omnibus" bill, a bill concerning qualified school construction bonds and a bill concerning new school sustainability features, though the latter measure was eventually pocket vetoed.

House Education Committee Substitute for House Bill 68 (Chapter 104, p.v.), the omnibus public school capital outlay oversight task force bill, includes the repeal of the $29 million appropriation from the first special session for the payment of certain insurance premiums with public school capital outlay fund dollars. The bill also includes most of the public school capital outlay oversight task force's recommendations, such as extending the roof repair and replacement initiative from 2012 to 2015; requiring that any public school capital outlay fund distributions authorized by the public school capital outlay council to the construction industries division of the regulation and licensing department and the state fire marshal's office for inspections be considered supplementary rather than supplanting; allowing the public school facilities authority to act as a central purchasing office for certain emergency public school capital outlay projects; and continuing the study of issues relating to performance-based procurement for public school capital outlay projects and reporting its findings to the governor and the legislature for the 2011 session. The governor vetoed language that would have allowed for a credit of up to 20% of a high school project if it qualifies for a rural community adjustment.

House Education Committee Substitute for House Bill 145 (Chapter 56) amends language in a bill passed by the 2009 legislature to allow New Mexico school districts to participate in the federal ARRA qualified school construction bonds program, which provides authority for school districts to issue interest-free bonds for projects meeting certain qualifications.

House Education Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 84 was the result of a suggestion by an elementary school student council to its state senator. The bill, which was pocket vetoed by the governor, would have established a "one percent for the twenty-first century" program in which new and renovated schools would have been required to include certain sustainability features, many of which are already a part of the state's adequacy standards.

Public School Finance

Each year since the legislature moved to what is known as the "floating unit value", the general appropriation act has included language that the secretary of public education will set a preliminary unit value to establish budgets for the coming school year and, upon verification of the number of units statewide for the fiscal year but no later than January 31, will adjust the unit value pursuant to the verified number. For fiscal year 2010, the unit value was preliminarily set at $3,606.40; however, the proposed final unit value would have to be lowered to $3,450.06 based on last year's funding, which results in a crippling difference of $148.34 per unit. House Bill 64 (Chapter 2) is a temporary provision that allows the secretary of public education to reset the unit value at a date later than January 31, 2010. The date change will allow the public education department to distribute $45.5 million in ARRA funds as part of the state equalization guarantee distribution, thus propping up the unit value.

In the wake of a public school employee's embezzlement of almost $4 million, habitually late audits from some school districts and charter schools and a legislative finance committee performance audit of several school districts last summer that pointed out weaknesses in financial accountability, House Education Committee Substitute for House Bills 227 and 251 (Chapter 115) requires local school boards and governing boards of charter schools to create finance subcommittees of their boards and to appoint audit committees that include public members. The finance subcommittee, which is a subset of the board, will enable those members to focus on financial planning, revenue and expenditure projections, budget preparation and oversight and procurement. The audit committee, which will include a parent and a person with experience in accounting or financial matters, will focus more closely on the annual external audit process and make recommendations to the board on ways to solve and prevent problems found in audits. Although external audits rarely turn up evidence of fraud, it is hoped that the increased scrutiny, oversight and monitoring will improve school district and charter school financial systems to avoid any further occurrences of fraud.

House Bill 232 (Chapter 116) is a little bill with a big impact; it standardizes reporting dates instead of using the fortieth, eightieth and one hundred twentieth days. With standardized reporting dates, all schools will report enrollment and other data at the same time rather than on the current hodgepodge of dates based on when each school district or charter school begins the school year. The new reporting dates are the second Wednesday in October, the second Wednesday in December and the second Wednesday in February.

New Mexico joins more than 25 other states in the Interstate Compact on Educational Opportunity for Military Children with the enactment of House Bill 24 (Chapter 41). The compact delineates the state's and a school district's responsibilities toward children of military families. The compact passed by the legislature differs in several respects from the interstate compact signed by other states because of amendments made to the compact in the 2009 session and this session. The purpose of the compact is to remove barriers to educational success imposed on children of military families because of frequent moves and deployment of their parents. The compact lays out how several issues are to be handled, including educational records and enrollments; placement and attendance; extracurricular participation; and timely graduation. The compact sets up an interstate commission on educational opportunity for military children, of which New Mexico becomes a member upon signing the compact. One of the amendments to the bill made this year eliminates a one-year lag if the state decides to withdraw from the compact and, instead, makes such a withdrawal effective upon New Mexico's repeal of the compact. The compact provides for the creation of a military children education compact state council to provide coordination among state agencies, local educational agencies and military installations. The council designates a military family education liaison to assist military families and the state in facilitating the implementation of the compact. In addition, the governor is directed to appoint a compact commissioner to administer the compact in New Mexico and to serve on the interstate commission.

Beginning in the 2012-2013 school year, House Bill 44 (Chapter 110) requires that students take health education as a required course for high school graduation. The law allows each school district to determine whether the required course will be offered in middle school or high school. If the course is required in middle school, students will not have to reduce their high school electives. Each school district must submit an implementation plan to the public education department by the beginning of the 2011-2012 school year that describes the course and shows how it is aligned with state academic content and performance standards.

The legislature increased the mathematics credits required for graduation when it passed high school redesign in 2009. This year, with the enactment of House Bill 53 (Chapter 25), financial literacy that meets state mathematics academic content and performance standards qualifies as one of the four required mathematics units.

For several years, the public education department and the higher education department have been working to improve data collection and reporting, and two bills passed by the legislature took giant steps in that direction. House Bill 69 (Chapter 111) requires the reporting of cohort data by school districts, state-chartered charter schools and the public education department. These data will make it easier to see where and when students are failing to graduate on time. The data are to be reported as part of each school district's and state-chartered charter school's annual accountability report, commonly known as the "school district report card" or "charter school report card". For the purposes of this law, "cohort" is defined as a group of students who enter ninth grade for the first time at the same time plus those students who transfer into the group in later years and minus those students who leave the cohort for documented excusable reasons. House Education Committee Substitute for House Bill 70 (Chapter 112), also known as the "data warehouse bill" or "P-20 data bill", establishes in statute the data system for pre-kindergarten through post-secondary education. It also creates the data system council that had been created by executive order and requires the council to create a management plan that assigns authority and responsibility for the operation of the data system and to develop a strategic plan that includes time lines, budget goals and required training for the data system users. In addition, the council is directed to create the policies that will ensure reasonable access to data reports. As required by federal and state law, the confidentiality of personally identifiable student and educator data will be safeguarded. Since 2008, New Mexico has been participating in the college and career ready policy institute, which is part of an eight-state project funded by the Bill and Melinda Gates foundation to provide technical assistance in developing high school accountability systems aligned with expectations of college and the work place. A key component of New Mexico's proposal to the institute was the development of its longitudinal student data system.

House Bill 71 (Chapter 113) requires mentorship for level one teachers for the first full school year. If funding is available, level one teachers may receive mentorship services beyond the first year if a superintendent or charter school administrator certifies the need for the teacher. The law also makes clear that the state will not pay for mentorship beyond three years. When passed originally as part of public school reform, the intent of the section was to require mentoring for all level one teachers during the nonrenewable three-year level one licensure period to ensure that beginning teachers – that is, level one teachers – were given the proper support to advance to level two licensure and a competent career. Later, the law was changed to provide for a five-year level one license, and, again, it was unrenowable except for exigent circumstances. In light of funding restrictions, the public education department has been paying only for first-year teachers.

House Bill 74 (Chapter 48) requires a chartering authority to provide more oversight during a charter school's planning year to make sure the school's implementation process is consistent with the conditions, standards and procedures of the approved charter.

House Bill 90 (Chapter 36) allows federal bureau of Indian education high schools and tribal colleges to participate in the state's dual credit program, which allows high school students to enroll in college-level courses and get both high school and college credit.

House Bill 150 (Chapter 114) and Senate Bill 132 (Chapter 108) enact the Hispanic Education Act. After multiple amendments across the chambers to ensure that the bills were duplicates of one another, the act provides for a Hispanic education liaison in the public education department to focus on issues related to education for Hispanic students and to serve as a resource for school districts and charter schools to provide equitable and culturally relevant learning environments, educational opportunities and instructional materials for Hispanic public school students. The liaison will advise the secretaries of public education and higher education on Hispanic education policies and educational strategic plans as they relate to Hispanic student education. The law creates the Hispanic education advisory council to advise the secretary of public education on improving public school education, increasing parental and community involvement and increasing the number of Hispanic graduates who succeed in post-secondary academic, professional or vocational education.

House Education Committee Substitute for House Bill 230 (Chapter 59) defines dyslexia as a specific learning disability and requires schools to intervene when a student demonstrates characteristics of dyslexia. Schools are required to provide timely, appropriate, systematic, scientific and research-based interventions prescribed by student assistance teams. Along with defining dyslexia in the definition section for all special education, the law defines "response to intervention", commonly referred to as "RtI", and "student assistance team".

Each year in the United States, there are an estimated 135,000 sports-related traumatic brain injuries, 65% of which happen to children aged five to 18. Senate Education Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 1 (Chapter 96) establishes safety protocols for student athletes. The New Mexico activities association is required to consult with the brain injury advisory council and school districts to promulgate rules based on current medical knowledge for training coaches to understand the nature and risk of brain injury associated with athletic activity; recognize signs, symptoms and behaviors consistent with brain injury; understand the need to alert appropriate medical professionals for urgent diagnosis and treatment; and understand the need to follow medical direction for proper medical protocols. With passage of this measure, student athletes are not allowed to participate in school athletics for at least one week after receiving a brain injury and then only after receiving a medical release from a licensed health care professional. School districts are required to provide brain injury information to student athletes and their parents at the beginning of each academic year or prior to a student's participation in school athletic activities. Forms must be signed by the student and the parent before the student may participate in school athletic activities for that year or activity.

Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Bills 87 and 92 (Chapter 66) delays from the 2010-2011 school year to the 2011-2012 school year implementation of school calendar changes enacted in 2009. In conjunction with this provision, the legislature passed Senate Joint Memorial 12 directing the office of education accountability, in conjunction with the public education department and other stakeholders, to study the impact of various school calendar options and scheduling practices on teachers, learning time, achievement of students, school operations and district budgetary needs. The study will also examine the need, if any, to amend the Variable School Calendar Act. The office is to report its findings and recommendations to the legislative education study committee by October 31, 2010.

In light of the state's fiscal problems and reduced funding to public school support, the legislature passed and the governor signed Senate Bill 97 (Chapter 68), which allows school districts to have flexibility similar to that of charter schools in the areas of class size, teaching load, length of school day, staffing patterns, subject areas and purchase of instructional materials. The law is a temporary provision that applies to the 2009-2010 through 2011-2012 school years. The secretary of public education may waive these requirements, and the public education department must monitor them to ensure that student learning is not adversely affected.

Senate Bill 111 (Chapter 107) requires that the professional development plan for teachers include documentation on how a teacher who receives required professional development incorporates the results of that professional development in the classroom.

ELECTIONS

Of the 23 bills introduced this session that related to elections, only two managed to make it to the governor's desk. In addition, the legislature approved two proposed constitutional amendments that relate to elections – one concerning the election of county officers and the other changing provisions regarding who is qualified to vote. See the Constitutional Amendments section for a discussion of these measures.

House Bill 127 (Chapter 90) expands the pool of prospective poll workers. County clerks may now allow qualified minors who are 16 years of age or older to be poll workers in state elections. The state's voting systems are the subject of House Appropriations and Finance Committee Substitute for House Bill 198 (Chapter 28), which updates several provisions of law dealing with the certification of voting systems, including the creation of a voting system certification committee, an update of voting system standards and enactment of provisions governing the purchase, storage, custody, maintenance and disposal of voting systems.

EMPLOYMENT AND LABOR

New Mexicans continue to suffer the effects of a global and national recession, with the state's unemployment rate reaching a 20-year high of nearly 9% during the legislative session. The legislature dealt with a shortage in the funds that help workers through periods of unemployment and passed legislation to remove barriers that have prevented certain workers from obtaining employment in the past.

In House Bill 144 (Chapter 55), the legislature addressed a projected shortage in the state's unemployment compensation funds and a severe increase in the unemployment compensation contribution rate due to take effect next year. The bill provides for a 22% increase in contribution rates beginning in calendar year 2011 rather than the forecasted 240% increase that would have been required under previous law. The bill also discontinues the temporary increase in the weekly unemployment benefit percentage and abolishes the state unemployment trust fund, transferring the balances to the unemployment compensation fund.

Senate Bill 254 (Chapter 76) amends the Criminal Offender Employment Act to prohibit a board, department or agency of the state or political subdivision of the state from making an inquiry regarding a conviction on an initial application for employment. A conviction may only be taken into consideration when an applicant is selected as a finalist for a position.

ENERGY, ENVIRONMENT AND NATURAL RESOURCES

Although renewable energy has been a common theme in recent sessions that has focused the public's attention on energy, environment and natural resources, most of the legislation on these topics during this session was of the housekeeping kind. Other than House Bill 181 and Senate Bill 190, which foster distributed generation and are discussed in the Utilities section, energy bills this year did not plow new ground so much as address the need to bring New Mexico into compliance with the federal Energy Policy Act of 2005 and assist claimants pursuant to the federal Energy Employees Occupational Illness Compensation Program Act of 2000. The legislature repaired some unintended consequences of mine safety legislation from a few years ago by facilitating certification of mine safety training; provided a temporary method to fund stabilization of sinkholes caused by brine wells; and enacted the Natural Heritage Conservation Act to provide funding for conservation and agricultural easements and land restoration projects.

As overseer of mine safety, the state mine inspector requested legislation to improve administration of mine laws. House Bill 80 (Chapter 20) provides a review and appeal process for mine operators who receive notices of violation that include penalty assessments for failure to immediately notify the mine accident operations center when an accident occurs and also provides methods of recertification training other than the costly and unnecessary recertification testing previously required. Under the new provisions, it is the responsibility of the individuals and the operators to provide the training and submit verification to the state mine inspector, who has authority to approve a plan and monitor the implementation of this recertification process.

The federal Energy Policy Act of 2005 changed federal law governing regulation of petroleum storage tanks, thus requiring that state law be amended. House Bill 81 (Chapter 27) amends sections of the Hazardous Waste Act and the Ground Water Protection Act to comply with federal law. Specifically, definitions of "above ground storage tank" and "underground storage tank" now include emergency generator systems; exempt only farm, ranch and residential tanks that store motor fuel only; and exempt tanks used to store heating oil for consumptive use on the premises where it is stored. The new definition of a "tank owner" mirrors the federal definition in 40 CFR 280.12, and other new provisions grant authority to the environmental improvement board to prohibit delivery, deposit, acceptance or sale of petroleum products in a storage tank facility that is ineligible for delivery, deposit or acceptance.

The federal Energy Employees Occupational Illness Compensation Program Act of 2000 provides benefits to eligible current or former employees of the department of energy; certain vendors, contractors and subcontractors; certain uranium workers; and qualified survivors of such individuals as provided in the act. House Bill 101 (Chapter 50) creates the nuclear workers assistance fund to assist nuclear workers seeking claims under the act. The fund, which receives no general fund appropriation in the bill, would receive a fee assessed on successful claimants and will be administered by the New Mexico department of environment.

Because the oil and gas reclamation fund does not currently have the money to cover costs associated with mitigation of brine well sinkholes, House Taxation and Revenue Committee Substitute for House Bill 208 (Chapter 98) increases the distributions from revenues collected pursuant to the Oil and Gas Conservation Tax Act and directs some of the increase to the fund. The rate of the oil and gas conservation tax on oil is increased to 0.24% when the average price of west Texas intermediate crude in the previous quarter exceeds $70.00 per barrel, and the oil and gas reclamation fund will receive 19.7% of net revenue from that additional tax. The bill also amends sections of the Oil and Gas Act to remove the limit on the amount of money in the fund and to provide for donations to the fund. Money in the fund may be used to remediate associated production facilities used for the production, treatment, transportation, storage or disposal of oil, gas, brine, product or waste generated during oil and gas operations or used in the production of oil and gas.

The stated purpose of the Natural Heritage Conservation Act, enacted in Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 186 (Chapter 83, p.v.), is to protect the state's natural heritage, customs and culture by funding conservation and agricultural easements and by funding land restoration to protect the land and water available for forests and watersheds; natural areas; wildlife and wildlife habitat; agricultural production on working farms and ranches; outdoor recreation and trails; and land and habitat restoration and management. A conservation project is defined as the acquisition of conservation or agricultural easements from a willing seller or a land restoration project. Public entities that may partner with a private nonprofit charitable corporation or trust in a conservation project include the state; a state educational institution named in Article 12, Section 11 of the constitution of New Mexico; a political subdivision; and, for projects wholly within New Mexico, an Indian tribe or pueblo. In the March special session, the legislature reauthorized almost $5 million in severance tax bond proceeds that had originally been allocated for fair and arena improvements and redirected them for restoration projects and purchase of conservation easements.

GAME AND FISH

The legislature had to repair unintended consequences of previous legislation in the area of game and fish, this time to exempt state officials from penalties for possession of aquatic invasive species while in performance of their duties. It also provided a reduced-fee hunting and fishing combination license for New Mexico residents who serve in the armed forces and free fishing licenses and habitat management stamps for certain disabled military personnel and veterans.

Under technical corrections made in House Bill 113 (Chapter 89), officials in possession of aquatic invasive species are now exempt from penalties and may now conduct sampling at lakes, ship samples to laboratories for analysis and transport aquatic invasive species for destruction without being in violation of the law. Further changes to the law expand training options for inspectors; clarify decontamination requirements for boat owners; provide warning tags to be placed on a conveyance or equipment if an inspector has information that the conveyance is coming from infested waters; and require the director of game and fish to immediately notify an entity in control of a water body that has been infested to limit access and take steps to prevent the potential spread of aquatic invasive species.

The department of game and fish sells approximately 8,300 general hunting and general hunting and fishing full-fee combination licenses each year. House Bill 37 (Chapter 45) creates a new class of combination general hunting and fishing license at a reduced fee of $28.00 for members of the armed forces of the United States who are New Mexico residents. According to the veterans' services department, approximately 7,000 members of the armed forces are residents of New Mexico, representing somewhat less than 1% of the state's total population. A similar measure, Senate Bill 193 (Chapter 72), provides for free fishing licenses and habitat management stamps for disabled active duty military personnel and veterans who are undergoing rehabilitation programs that include learning and practicing fishing skills.

GAMING

Two significant bills related to gaming were introduced during the session, and one passed. The bill that failed would have allowed simulcasting by horse racetracks of dog races from licensed dog tracks outside of New Mexico. An attorney general's opinion is being sought to determine if simulcasting dog races would expand the current scope of gaming in the state and its implications for revenue sharing under the tribal-state gaming compacts. The gaming measure that did pass – House Bill 203, which is discussed in the Taxation section – provides relief for gaming operator licensees with gaming machine revenue net receipts under $15 million. The relief takes a form substantially changed from bills introduced in the previous two years, which provided a reduced gaming tax for certain racetracks, and instead creates a new gross receipts tax while also providing a gaming tax credit for racetracks that meet the $15 million income limitation.

HEALTH AND PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

The focus on the budget during this session left very little opportunity to focus on health and public assistance issues. The legislature passed three bills related to health insurance: one that mandates gender equity in setting insurance rates; one that sets the minimum expenditures that insurers and health maintenance organizations make for direct services; and one that attempts to provide flexibility for the New Mexico medical insurance pool to meet the potential demands of federal health care reform. In the realm of public health, bills were passed to address potential brain injuries in school athletic programs, birth defect screening tests for newborns and the sharing of information regarding HIV infection. Integrated health care services provided to medicaid clients under a medical home service model may now be provided by three new categories of health care professionals, and a permanent interim disabilities concerns subcommittee was created to address the concerns of individuals with disabilities.

House Business and Industry Committee Substitute for House Bill 12 (Chapter 94) mandates that health insurers, health maintenance organizations and nonprofit health plans reimburse for direct services at amounts determined by whether the coverage is sold to individuals or groups. Direct services include health care services and exclude administrative costs and profits, and the proportion of direct services reimbursement to administration and profits is known as the "medical loss ratio". For small groups, the reimbursement rate must be at least 85% of premiums. For individual policies, plans or contracts, the superintendent of insurance is directed to establish the reimbursement rate for direct services after notice and an informal hearing. The superintendent must set the direct services reimbursement rate for individual policies, plans or contracts at a minimum of 75% of premiums and, in setting the rate, consider the costs associated with marketing and underwriting in the individual market.

Where permitted, health insurers use rating factors such as age, health status, geography and gender to determine the premiums for their products. With the passage of Senate Bill 148 (Chapter 95), policies or contracts for individual or group health coverage sold under the New Mexico Insurance Code, Minimum Healthcare Protection Act, Small Group Rate and Renewability Act and Health Insurance Alliance Act may no longer use gender as a health insurance rating factor after January 1, 2014. The 20% maximum differential between genders permitted in the current rating scheme – where all other factors such as age or geography are the same – will be reduced to 15% in calendar year 2011, 10% in 2012 and 5% in 2013 before being eliminated entirely in 2014.

House Bill 216 (Chapter 92) amends the Medical Insurance Pool Act to authorize the New Mexico medical insurance pool to develop new insurance programs that provide expanded coverage for state high-risk pools pursuant to federal law. The bill was enacted to provide flexibility to the New Mexico medical insurance pool to participate in and receive funding from any federal program created as a result of federal health care reform efforts.

Section 27-2-12.15 NMSA 1978 of the Public Assistance Act, enacted in 2009, requires the human services department "where practicable" to provide integrated care to medicaid recipients through a medical home service model. The integrated care provided pursuant to this model is overseen by a primary care provider who works in partnership with the recipient and other health care providers. Under the 2009 law, only medical doctors or physician assistants licensed under the Medical Practice Act or certified nurse practitioners licensed pursuant to the Nursing Practice Act were included as eligible primary care providers. House Bill 26 (Chapter 43) expands the definition of "primary care provider" to include osteopathic physicians licensed pursuant to Chapter 61, Article 10 NMSA 1978, osteopathic physician assistants licensed under the Osteopathic Physicians' Assistants Act and pharmacist clinicians licensed or certified to prescribe and administer drugs that are subject to the New Mexico Drug, Device and Cosmetic Act.

House Bill 109 (Chapter 80) provides a mechanism for the human services department to contract on a contingent-fee basis for the recovery of amounts owed to the department due to overpayments or to third-party reimbursements made to recipients of the department's assistance programs. All collected amounts will be deposited into the newly created human services department reimbursement suspense fund, from which the contingent fees will be paid. Balances remaining after contractor payments will be distributed to the department.

Senate Bill 12 (Chapter 4) amends the confidentiality provisions of the Human Immunodeficiency Virus Test Act to allow the department of health to obtain information regarding individuals who may have been exposed to HIV through contact with an HIV-infected individual. The new provisions will make it easier for the department to provide "partner services", such as HIV testing, to these individuals according to departmental protocols and regulations for other reportable sexually transmitted diseases; however, the provisions do not allow the department to disclose the name of an individual identified as having been infected with HIV.

Upon the later of either January 1, 2011 or when the secretary of health finds that the tests are reasonably available, House Bill 201 (Chapter 91) adds five additional tests to the current list of 27 newborn screening tests conducted pursuant to Section 24-1-6 NMSA 1978 of the Public Health Act.

Following the creation of a temporary disabilities subcommittee of the legislative health and human services committee that met in the interim of 2009, Senate Bill 264 (Chapter 24) creates a permanent version of that subcommittee. The interim disabilities concerns subcommittee is charged with conducting a continuing study of programs, agencies, policies, issues and needs relating to individuals with disabilities, including a review of statutes, constitutional provisions, court decisions and the full continuum of available programs and services. The subcommittee's findings and recommendations will be reported by October 1 of each year to the legislative health and human services committee. Six committee members will be appointed to the subcommittee, drawn equally from both houses and proportionately from both parties.

INTERNET AND INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

Various successful measures coming out of the regular session addressed online access to state government information and services as well as increased protection for consumers as their credit information is handled by online systems. Senate Bill 195, discussed under the Operations subheading of the State Government section, enacts the Sunshine Portal Transparency Act to provide a web site where anyone can access a broad spectrum of information on state government operations and expenditures. House Resolution 1, House Rules and Order of Business Committee Substitute for House Resolution 2 and House Resolution 3, all discussed under the Legislature subheading of the State Government section, increase public access to the legislature's proceedings by posting video and audio streams of floor sessions and committee hearings and certain roll call votes on the legislature's web site. House Consumer and Public Affairs Committee Substitute for House Bill 25 and Senate Bill 137, both of which are discussed in the Motor Vehicles and Transportation section, provide for online renewal of driver's licenses. House Judiciary Committee Substitute for House Bill 131, discussed in the Business and Consumers section, expands protections for victims of identity theft under the newly renamed Fair Credit Reporting and Identity Security Act.

LAND GRANTS

One measure signed into law during the session strengthens the ability of certain land grants in the state to contest land surveys conducted on or near their common lands. Senate Judiciary Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 41 (Chapter 6) enacts a new section of the Engineering and Surveying Practice Act to require that when boundary surveys are conducted on lands within or bordering the common lands of a land grant governed and operating pursuant to Chapter 49, Article 6, 7, 8 or 10 NMSA 1978, the surveyor will give written notice by certified mail to the board of trustees or commissioners of the land grant prior to recording the boundary survey or plat with the county clerk. Boundary surveys or plats that are recorded without providing such notice will be considered invalid. The land grants affected by the new law include the Las Vegas land grant in San Miguel county; la merced del Manzano in Torrance county; the Nuestra Señora del Rosario, San Fernando y Santiago land grant in Rio Arriba county; and the Tecolote land grant in San Miguel county.

MOTOR VEHICLES AND TRANSPORTATION

The major legislation coming out of the session concerning motor vehicles gave the motor vehicle division of the taxation and revenue department a number of tools to make the division more customer-friendly and efficient. Duplicate bills House Consumer and Public Affairs Committee Substitute for House Bill 25 (Chapter 42) and Senate Bill 137 (Chapter 70) allow driver's licenses to be renewed by telephone, by mail or on the division's web site; create more flexibility in the term for which a driver's license can be issued; provide that driver's licenses issued before the holder's twenty-first birthday will expire 30 days following the twenty-first birthday; and allow the division to prorate driver's license fees due to the shortened licensure period. By providing for the expiration of licenses shortly after the holder turns 21, the problem of individuals older than 21 being unable to purchase alcoholic beverages because they hold an underage vertical-format license is eliminated, as is the problem of having to pay extra to get a regular horizontal format card at age 21 when the holder's license has not yet expired.

PUBLIC OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES

Public employees can rest somewhat easier with the adjournment of the legislative session because they were left basically unscathed by the financial legislation that was adopted. Of course, this leaves those employees even more vulnerable if the economy does not pick up and the legislature finds that additional budget cuts are required. Adopted legislation dealt with issues in both the Public Employees Retirement Act and the Educational Retirement Act, including "double dipping", or public employees returning to work while receiving retirement benefits; changing beneficiaries for Public Employees Retirement Act benefits; interrogations of a hazardous duty officer who is under internal investigation; and protections for public employees who speak up about their employers' illegal or improper activities. A proposed amendment to the state constitution regarding legislators appointed to civil office while serving in the legislature is discussed in the Constitutional Amendments section, and bills concerning educational retiree pension benefits are discussed under the Educational Retirement subheading of the Education section.

The so-called "double dipping bill", Senate Floor Substitute for Senate Public Affairs Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 207 (Chapter 18), eliminates the ability of a public employee to retire and then be subsequently employed by an affiliated public employer while receiving a Public Employees Retirement Act pension, effective July 1, 2010. Under the new provisions, a retiree may be subsequently employed only if the retiree has not been employed by or has not contracted with an affiliated public employer – the same employer from which the retiree retired, if an independent contractor – for a period of 12 months from retirement until commencement of the subsequent employment. Upon reemployment, the previously retired member's pension is suspended and the member may choose either not to pay contributions and not earn service credit or to pay contributions and earn service credit. When a reemployed member retires again, the member's pension shall resume as provided in the Public Employees Retirement Act. Appointments as chief of police or undersheriff of an affiliated public employer are no longer exceptions to the reemployment limitations. Previously retired members who are subsequently employed prior to July 1, 2010 are subject to the provisions of law that applied to their subsequent employment at the time they were reemployed. Employment with the legislature for a legislative session is not covered by the restrictions on reemployment.

The legislature enacted the Whistleblower Protection Act in House Judiciary Committee Substitute for House Bill 165 (Chapter 12) in response to the United States supreme court case Garcetti v. Ceballos, 547 U.S. 410 (2006) and tenth circuit cases holding that public employees are not protected by the first amendment for speech made pursuant to official duties. The act prohibits a public employer from retaliating against an employee who communicates about or provides information on an unlawful or improper act by the public employer. A public employer that retaliates in violation of the act would be liable for reinstatement, actual and special damages, two times the amount of back pay with interest as well as attorney fees and litigation costs. Public employers covered by the act include all state and local government agencies, institutions, offices, boards, commissions, entities and instrumentalities and their public officers. The act protects both public employees and contractors.

With the enactment of House Bill 16 (Chapter 19), retirees in the public employees retirement association are allowed a one-time irrevocable opportunity to deselect their original pension beneficiary and choose another payment option. Previously, a public employees retirement association retiree could have payments changed only pursuant to a divorce court order or if the beneficiary predeceased the retiree. In order to avoid a negative fiscal impact on the retirement fund, the amount of the pension under the form of payment chosen will be recalculated to have the same actuarial present value as the current pension – that is, if a retiree selects a younger beneficiary under this new law, the amount of the pension payment will be reduced to compensate for the longer expected lifetime of the new beneficiary.

Senate Public Affairs Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 60 (Chapter 62) enacts the Hazardous Duty Officers' Employer-Employee Relations Act. The act provides procedures to be followed by employers and hazardous duty officers in administrative actions in which the acts of the officers are being investigated and provides certain rights to the officers. "Hazardous duty officer" is defined in the act to include only a firefighter, emergency medical technician or paramedic.

STATE GOVERNMENT

Facing troubling economic times, the legislature examined ways of restructuring state agencies to work more efficiently and improve performance. The legislature also looked at ways of achieving cost savings through energy-efficiency standards in its buildings and the recovery of credit card processing fees. More transparency in state government was also deemed an important objective, as demonstrated by the expansion of legislative webcasting and the creation of a central web site detailing the state's financial operations.

Legislature

The house of representatives expanded the webcasting it offers the public to include a video stream of floor proceedings and audio streams from most committees with the adoption of two rule changes. House Resolution 1 authorizes the legislative council service to include a video stream in the previously available audio stream of house floor proceedings, and House Rules and Order of Business Committee Substitute for House Resolution 2 requires that audio streams be available from substantive standing committees during the forty-ninth legislature and sets the stage for including a video stream from those committees in 2011. Previously, audio streams of committee proceedings were authorized for a two-year pilot project, but none were made available.

The house also adopted a rule to require that roll calls on the final passage of legislation be posted online. House Resolution 3 is substantially identical to a senate rule implemented in 2008.

House Bill 264 (Chapter 21) appropriates $5,000 from the legislative cash balances to the legislative council service for providing an Indian law institute for New Mexico legislators to enable them to understand the foundational principles of Indian law.

Operations

Only a few bills dealing with state government operations were passed in 2010. The trend toward providing more openness and more modern methods of accessing government records continued with the passage of a bill creating a public web site detailing the state's financial operations, while other bills dealt with credit card processing fees and government vehicles.

Senate Bill 195 (Chapter 34) enacts the Sunshine Portal Transparency Act, which provides for a single public web site that will contain a great deal of information about the financial operations of state government. The available information will include details about state budgets and expenditures, contracts, revenues, investments, capital projects and open meetings. The web site will be operational by July 1, 2011 and will be updated monthly.

The possibility of using a credit card to make a payment to a governmental agency increased with the passage of Senate Bill 77 (Chapter 64). The bill allows state agencies and local governments to charge a convenience fee to cover the cost of processing a credit card or electronic transfer transaction when accepting payment of an amount due under any law or program.

To maintain the independence and integrity of the three branches of government, House Bill 204 (Chapter 57) gives each separate branch independent control over the purchase, lease, maintenance, sale and use of its own vehicles.

The economic downturn and its impact on states, the poor performance of state investment funds, ethical concerns about policy and procedures within investment agency governing bodies and the tension caused by decreases in state revenue and increases in state government demands all generated a lot of discussion during the session and various initiatives. As a result, the makeup of the governing body of one of the investment agencies was revised and a government restructuring task force was created.

New Mexico's state investment council made headlines this year and not in a good way. Poor performance by funds under council management, as well as ongoing ethics concerns and investigations, led the legislature to seek an independent review of the governance and investment practices of the council and also of the educational retirement board and the public employees retirement association. The review brought to light a number of areas in which the structure and practices of the council could be improved. Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Rules Committee Substitute for Senate Bills 18, 218 and 238 (Chapter 14) implements some of these "best practices" recommendations. One concern raised in the review was the governor's significant influence and control over the council. To deal with this concern, the legislature changed the makeup of the body by replacing the state investment officer and the three public members appointed by the governor with four public members appointed by the New Mexico legislative council and two public members appointed by the governor. The six new members must have at least 10 years of experience in investment or finance. The bill also transfers the investment decision-making power from the state investment officer to the state investment council; authorizes the council to contract for its own custodial bank; clarifies that the state investment officer and the state investment council are fiduciaries of all funds under management; requires the council to provide opportunity for public comment at any meeting; and requires greater reporting to the legislature of fund performance and council policies. In response to ethics concerns, the new law prohibits a council member from contracting to do business with the council, investment office, office of the state treasurer, educational retirement board, public employees retirement association, New Mexico finance authority or state board of finance for two calendar years before the member's appointment or two years after the member's term on the council.

The budget shortfall prompted initiatives to streamline or consolidate state government operations. Six weeks before the session, the governor appointed a committee on government efficiency that produced a report with recommendations just five days before the session started. This prompted a number of legislators to introduce bills that included many of the committee's recommendations to merge, transfer or eliminate various agencies. While none of those bills passed, House Bill 237 (Chapter 101) creates the government restructuring task force to take a fresh look at state government. The 17-member task force is charged with reviewing agencies, programs, services, funding, policies and public needs and subsequently making recommendations on consolidation, elimination or reduction of state government agencies or programs and on projected staffing needs.

The report of the task force is to be made available to the legislature and the governor in December 2010.

Organization

The legislature made permanent the interim military and veterans' affairs committee with the passage of Senate Bill 129 (Chapter 23). The committee is charged with meeting in various locations around New Mexico to conduct hearings related to the military and veterans' issues. In 2009, the legislature created the committee for one year.

Property and Procurement

Energy-efficiency standards will be applied to new government buildings as a result of Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 200 (Chapter 73). The bill requires that any new building, building renovation or building addition funded in whole or in part with legislative appropriations made after January 1, 2011 be designed and constructed to attain either the ENERGY STAR qualification of the United States environmental protection agency or an alternative, equivalent standard specified by rule of the energy, minerals and natural resources department. The bill is intended to ensure that state buildings will realize cost savings through energy efficiency, and it allows for exemptions if the department determines that the costs of compliance would exceed the estimated life-cycle savings of the new building, building renovation or building addition.

TAXATION

2010 Regular Session

During the regular legislative session, legislators could not agree on or adopt a budget and, therefore, did little to enhance revenue, as they could not decide how much revenue was needed. Several economic development initiatives were adopted. One initiative creates a county gaming tax credit and also authorizes imposition of a local option gross receipts tax to offset the state gaming taxes lost if a racetrack qualifies to take the county gaming tax credit. Another initiative continues the effort to encourage electrical generating facilities to use certain alternative energy technologies by creating another permutation of the advanced energy tax credits — a gross receipts tax deduction and a deduction from the computation of compensating tax. It appears that with this version of the incentives, the ways in which a tax incentive can be offered to these utilities may finally be exhausted.

Only time will tell if the incentives will ever be used.

Few property tax measures were adopted, leaving to the courts for at least one more year the question of how to appease new purchasers of residential property – especially those in Bernalillo county, whose property tax burdens are considerably higher than those of their similarly situated neighbors who have not transferred their property since 2001.

A number of local gross receipts tax issues finally gained approval after several years of effort by the New Mexico municipal league and the New Mexico association of counties, including the loosening of county and municipal authority so that more counties may impose a local option capital outlay gross receipts tax.

► Local Gross Receipts Taxes

The revenue that may be pledged by a county to repay revenue bonds issued by a county pursuant to Section 4-62-1 NMSA 1978 is increased in Senate Bill 162 (Chapter 82) to include the one-sixteenth percent increment of county gross receipts tax authorized for imposition in Section 7-20E-9 NMSA 1978. The one-sixteenth increment was authorized for imposition by counties by the legislature in 2004.

Another local option gross receipts tax provision was adopted in Senate Bill 234 (Chapter 75), which changes the purposes for which the county hospital emergency gross receipts tax, authorized by Section 7-20E-12.1 NMSA 1978, may be used. Originally, the revenue could be used to repay bonds or a loan for acquisition of a county hospital, as well as for equipping, remodeling or improvement of that county hospital. The new wording allows the revenue to be used for acquiring land or buildings for and design and construction of a county hospital, as well as for equipping, remodeling or improving a county hospital. In addition, the bill allows for the extension of the term of an imposed county hospital emergency gross receipts tax for an additional 20 years prior to the repeal of the tax and allows a change of purpose at the time of the extension or the inclusion of additional purposes authorized in Section 7-20E-12.1 NMSA 1978.

House Bill 30 (Chapter 44) removes the requirement that in order for a county or municipality to impose a county or municipal capital outlay gross receipts tax, it must also impose other county gross receipts taxes specified in Section 7-20E-21 NMSA 1978 or other municipal gross receipts taxes specified in Section 7-19D-12 NMSA 1978. Many counties and municipalities have no reason to impose these more general local option tax increments but do have a need for the county capital outlay gross receipts tax or the municipal capital outlay gross receipts tax. The revenue from the county capital outlay gross receipts tax and the municipal capital outlay gross receipts tax may be used for any infrastructure improvement or construction within the jurisdiction of the local government imposing the tax.

► State Gross Receipts and Compensating Taxes

House Energy and Natural Resources Committee Substitute for House Bills 261 and 277 (Chapter 78) and Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Bills 201 and 202 (Chapter 77) revise renewable energy tax incentives to provide a maximum combined tax benefit for one facility at no more than $60 million. New deductions must now be reported separately to the taxation and revenue department. The new deductions will be available for a 10-year period and cannot be claimed for the same expenditures for which the income tax or the corporate income tax credits are claimed. The legislation also expands the existing gross receipts tax deduction for the sale of wind generation equipment to include solar generation equipment, but only if the sale is made to a government entity, including to a privately developed project that receives industrial revenue bond financing.

House Bill 203 (Chapter 31) enacts a county business retention gross receipts tax and a county gaming tax credit to ease the tax burden on racetracks with relatively low revenue from the gaming machine portion of their businesses and to help those tracks remain viable. The county business retention gross receipts tax may be imposed by the county commission of a county in which a gaming operator licensee that is a racetrack is located, provided that the imposition of the tax is approved by the voters. The tax may be imposed in one-sixteenth percent increments not to exceed a total of one-fourth percent and shall be imposed for a period not to exceed five years. The state shall collect the tax from businesses in the county and retain up to $750,000 from the net receipts of the tax from that county, but no more than an amount equal to the county gaming tax credits allowed in that county for a gaming operator licensee that is a racetrack. The excess tax may be used for promotion or administration of the county; instructional or general purposes of a post-secondary educational institution in the county; to relocate a public post-secondary educational institution in the county; or to fund professional services contracts related to implementing a county economic development plan.

The county gaming tax credit may be claimed by a gaming operator licensee that is a racetrack, subject to certain restrictions. The credit may not exceed $750,000 per state fiscal year, and the maximum credit for a taxpayer in a fiscal year may not exceed 50% of the gaming tax due from that taxpayer in that fiscal year. The gaming operator that is a racetrack must:

- be located in a county that has imposed a county business retention gross receipts tax that has been approved by the electors; and
- have a combined net take and receipts from a gaming machine allocation agreement in the past calendar year of less than $15 million.

► Income Taxes

House Bill 120 (Chapter 53) adds pass-through entities to the Oil and Gas Proceeds Withholding Tax Act, renamed the Oil and Gas Proceeds and Pass-Through Entity Withholding Tax Act, and clarifies treatment of pass-through entities in the Withholding Tax Act. The bill amends the Income Tax Act and the Corporate Income and Franchise Tax Act to ensure that these acts comport with the changes made to the two withholding tax acts. The new act requires an entity that distributes salaries, other earnings, annuities or pension benefits to an intended recipient – such as an entity that pays actors on behalf of a movie production, distributes oil or natural gas proceeds on behalf of an oil or gas producer or distributes pension or annuity benefits on behalf of another entity to the beneficiaries of those benefits – to withhold as taxes a percent of the money paid out and remit that money to the taxation and revenue department. This enables the state to receive the money in a timely manner and reduces the need for the state to search for the taxpayer, who may not be a resident of the state. Numerous technical changes were made to other statutes as well to ensure that supporting sections of law would comport with the changes made by this measure. The provisions of House Bill 120 apply to taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 2011 or before January 1, 2012.

The agricultural biomass tax credits created in House Bill 171 (Chapter 84) are an effort to encourage feedlot and dairy owners to transport cattle waste from their facilities to facilities that use agricultural biomass to generate electricity or make biocrude or other liquid or gaseous fuel for commercial use. The credits may be claimed against the taxpayer's liability under the Income Tax Act or the Corporate Income and Franchise Tax Act. The credits are equal to $5.00 per wet ton of agricultural biomass that is wet manure and may be carried forward for up to four consecutive taxable years. An agricultural biomass tax credit may be transferred from the original owner of a dairy or feedlot to another taxpayer. The energy, minerals and natural resources department must generate procedures to provide certification for transportation of the agricultural biomass and facilities qualified to receive the biomass. The annual limit on the credits that will be allowed by the taxation and revenue department is an aggregate of $5 million for all agricultural biomass tax credits. Claiming one type of agricultural biomass tax credit precludes a taxpayer from claiming the remaining type of agricultural biomass tax credit.

► Property Tax

During the 2009 interim, the New Mexico mortgage finance authority asked the Mortgage Finance Authority Act oversight committee to expand the coverage of the Affordable Housing Tax Credit Act to include all class A counties. With passage of Senate Bill 144 (Chapter 17), the affordable housing tax credit may now be claimed by an investor in an affordable housing project and credited against the investor's – or, if the tax credit is transferred, another taxpayer's – modified combined tax liabilities, including all taxes reported on the combined reporting form that covers gross receipts tax, compensating tax, withholding taxes and various other taxes.

House Bill 233 (Chapter 30) amends the Property Tax Code to provide that solar energy system installations are not considered physical improvements on residential property for revaluation purposes.

A proposed constitutional amendment to provide a property tax exemption for certain property owned by veterans' organizations is discussed in the Constitutional Amendments section.

► Other Taxes and Tax Measures

Senate Bill 59 (Chapter 15) extends the terms for which the Pueblo of Nambe and the Pueblo of Santo Domingo – now renamed the Pueblo of Kewa – can remain in gasoline tax-sharing agreements with the state from 10 years to 20 years.

House Taxation and Revenue Committee Substitute for House Bill 208, concerning taxes imposed pursuant to the Oil and Gas Conservation Tax Act, is discussed in the Energy, Environment and Natural Resources section. Senate Bill 47, concerning economic development tax incentives, is discussed in the Economic Development section. House Bill 112 and Senate Bill 95, concerning the Las Cruces tax increment development district, are discussed in the Economic Development section.

Second Special Session

The second special session, called so that the legislature could adopt a budget and enact revenue enhancements, convened 12 days after the regular session came to its constitutional conclusion. Three tax initiatives were approved in the special session, including a tax amnesty bill, a bill to increase the cigarette tax and a bill to increase the rates of the state gross receipts tax and the compensating tax imposed on the use of tangible personal property.

The governor used his pen to liberally veto parts of the cigarette tax bill and the gross receipts tax bill. In the cigarette tax bill, the governor vetoed a delayed repeal, or sunset, of the increase in the cigarette tax. The tax increase was to be repealed in four years. The governor also vetoed a provision that earmarked a portion of the increase for early childhood education for one year. The proposed return of food to the tax base for purposes of local gross receipts taxes and a credit for the state portion of the gross receipts tax on food were also vetoed. The provisions regarding the tax on food would have provided a large part of the revenue to be raised by proposals adopted by the legislature; the vetoed language would have increased the gross receipts tax on food in any community but only by the amount of local taxes imposed in that community. The governor's veto has the effect of maintaining the status quo: food is not subject to any gross receipts taxes, either state or local, and the state continues to hold local governments harmless by distributing to them an amount from the state's general fund calculated to replace the revenue that local governments lose due to elimination of food from their local gross receipts tax bases. An anomaly that causes Albuquerque to receive more revenue from the general fund than warranted by its lost gross receipts on food also remains in place. Another veto in the gross receipts tax bill eliminates proposed changes in low-income comprehensive tax rebate amounts that would have weighted those rebates slightly more heavily toward tax filers with taxable incomes below $6,000. The revenue impact of all of these bills is discussed in the Appropriations and Finance section.

Senate Bill 2 (Chapter 2, 2nd S.S.) provides for a temporary tax amnesty for taxpayers who are delinquent in paying state taxes but who have not been assessed taxes, penalties and interest by the taxation and revenue department for the taxes in question. Delinquent taxpayers are placed in the managed audit program and will not be charged penalties and interest on tax liabilities that are past due. A $500,000 appropriation is included in the legislation to pay for the expenses of the program. The term of the amnesty period cannot exceed 18 months and must fall in fiscal years 2010 and 2011. The secretary of taxation and revenue is to report the amount of revenue collected due to the tax amnesty program to the legislature during the legislative session in 2013. Because the bill contains an emergency clause, its provisions became effective upon signing.

House Taxation and Revenue Committee Substitute for House Bill 3 (Chapter 5, 2nd S.S., p.v.) increases the cigarette tax by $0.75 on each pack of 20 or 25 cigarettes, bringing the total tax to $1.66 per average pack. The bill also creates a new tax stamp that distributors will issue to Indian nations, tribes or pueblos that impose and collect their own cigarette tax of $0.75 or more. Otherwise, a distributor may only sell cigarettes that include the full state tax to Indian nations, tribes or pueblos or retailers on tribal land. Packs bearing the new tribal tax-credit stamps would be provided by a distributor free of state tax to a tribe certified by the taxation and revenue department to have an appropriate tribal cigarette tax imposed. A governor's veto made the cigarette tax increase permanent and also eliminated four distributions of cigarette tax money. Two of the distributions were new and were for early childhood education programs, but the other two were existing distributions to the county and municipality recreational fund and to the county and municipal cigarette tax fund. The money now will go to the general fund. The increase goes into effect on July 1, 2010, and increased revenue will be realized beginning in August.

The final tax measure adopted in the second special session, Senate Finance Committee Substitute for Senate Bills 10, 12 and 13 (Chapter 7, 2nd S.S., p.v.) increases the gross receipts tax rate by one-eighth percent and the compensating tax rate on the use of tangible personal property by one-eighth percent. The measure does not change the rate of compensating tax on services, however, so there are now two compensating tax rates. In addition, taxpayers who itemize will have to include in net income for state tax purposes the amount of their state and local taxes, other than property taxes, allowed as a deduction on federal income tax returns. The gross receipts and compensating tax provisions of this bill become effective on July 1, 2010, and the income tax provisions apply to taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 2010.

UTILITIES

Advocates of solar and other renewable energy sources were cheered this session with the enactment of legislation to exempt small-scale electric generation systems from the definition of "public utility" and, therefore, regulation by the public regulation commission. Distributed generation facilities, such as residential rooftops with solar panels, may now sell electric power back to utilities for distribution through the electric grid without having to comply with rules intended for large generating and distributing public utilities. A separate bill clarifies the law regarding counties' authority to collect franchise fees from public utilities.

House Bill 181 (Chapter 103) and Senate Bill 190 (Chapter 102) enact a new section of the Public Utility Act to provide that renewable energy distributed generation facilities that are not otherwise public utilities are not subject to regulation as public utilities. Renewable energy distributed generation facilities produce electric energy by use of renewable energy on a small scale and are located on the site of a customer of a public utility and integrated into the electricity provided by the utility. Public utilities may seek approval of rate riders to recover the ancillary and standby costs of interconnection of these facilities. The public regulation commission is required to consider system benefits and ensure that recovered costs are not duplicated. Public utilities may also create holding companies that offer services related to renewable energy, subject to terms and conditions that are in the public interest and provided that there is no disruption of regulation over corporate allocations or jurisdictional rates. Any order of the public regulation commission issued before January 1, 2011 declaring public utility status for a distributed generation facility that sells electricity is of no force or effect on or after May 19, 2010. The commission is required to submit a report identifying the effectiveness of, and recommending improvements to, the state's renewable energy distributed generation program to the legislature by December 31, 2012.

The public regulation commission recently issued an order eliminating the ability of counties to charge a franchise fee. The order required El Paso Electric to refund $5.3 million to residents in Doña Ana and Otero counties who live outside municipal boundaries. The potential loss of county revenue from franchise fees due to the commission's ruling and possible reductions in county budgets fostered the enactment of House Business and Industry Committee Substitute for House Bill 269 (Chapter 100), which authorizes counties to collect revenues for the use of public rights of way. Municipal and county agreements with public utilities that provide access to public rights of way and are in effect as of January 1, 2010 are valid and enforceable agreements. Such valid agreements include those that provide for a payment of fees by the public utility expressed as a percentage of the public utility's revenues. The provisions of the bill also apply to expired agreements that are still being honored by both the public utility and the local government according to their terms, regardless of the expiration date of the agreements, if both the public utility and the local government continue to abide by the terms of the expired agreement.

FIRST SPECIAL SESSION, 2009
AND
SECOND SPECIAL SESSION, 2010

The 2010 regular session was bookended by two special sessions, and all three sessions centered on efforts to balance budgets and keep essential state government services in place.

During the 2009 regular session, the legislature had already tried to address the revenue shortfall by canceling some one-time spending, transferring money from certain funds and cutting some recurring spending. The state also used some federal stimulus money to replace lost state revenue. However, revenues continued to decline, so the governor called the legislators into special session on October 17.

The governor's proclamation for the first special session was focused on transferring money from various funds to the general fund to close out fiscal year 2009 and close the $650 million gap for fiscal year 2010. To close the books on fiscal year 2009, the legislature transferred $225 million from the state's reserves to the general fund. To close the fiscal year 2010 gap, there was far less agreement. Some legislators wanted to raise taxes and others wanted to reduce salaries, but the governor's proclamation specifically excluded both of those initiatives. One week later, the legislature agreed on a package that freed up money from capital outlay projects, transferred money from various state funds, used federal stimulus funds and cut recurring and nonrecurring spending. The governor line-item vetoed some of the cuts in spending and instead issued an executive order directing agencies under his control to make cuts sufficient to close the gap for fiscal year 2010.

The regular 30-day session that began in January 2010 saw the fewest number of bills introduced in over a decade – 572. The fact that revenues were down about 20% over the last two years had a lot to do with the low number of bills. The legislature approved 125 bills, and the governor signed 116 and pocket-vetoed the rest. What was not included among the 125 bills was a general appropriation act for fiscal year 2010 – one of the main constitutionally mandated reasons for short sessions in even-numbered years. The last time the legislature adjourned during a regular session without approving a budget was 1984.

Two weeks after adjourning from the regular session, the governor called a second special session to put together a budget for fiscal year 2011. This time, however, he included provisions for raising certain taxes. The legislature approved a $5.6 billion budget that is below the previous three fiscal years' budgets. In order to keep the budget balanced if revenues continue to fall short, the legislature gave the governor the authority to reduce appropriations and transfer reserve funds. Additionally, a tax increase package was passed that was projected to raise about $235 million. The package included an increase in gross receipts tax; a repeal of state income tax deductions for payment of state and local income taxes and sales taxes; a cigarette tax increase; and a partial reimposition of the food tax. The governor line-item vetoed the food tax and also vetoed an expansion of the low-income comprehensive tax rebate designed to help more low-income New Mexicans.

Because the legislation that passed in both special sessions was integral to the measures passed during the regular session they bracketed, full discussions of the bills may be found in the Appropriations and Finance and Taxation sections in the main body of the Highlights.
